ARMAND E. SABITONI
General Secretary-Treasurer

In our 24th year, the Peggy Browning Fund (PBF) pays tribute to our inspiration, Peggy Browning, and to exceptional leaders who have made major contributions to the cause of workers' rights. Peggy was a very special person – a Member of the National Labor Relations Board; an extraordinary labor lawyer; a skilled ice skater; a hiker; a loving wife and mother; a caring friend and true supporter of the collective bargaining process.

PBF was established in 1997 by her friends and family to continue her life's work – helping workers. We thank everyone whose support helped us become the preeminent organization in the country for encouraging and recruiting new lawyers for the labor movement.

Our central program is a 10-week summer fellowship in which law students are matched with the needs of a pool of 70 mentoring organizations, including unions, worker centers, and union-side law firms. As everyone is experiencing, 2020 has become a very challenging year for the Peggy Browning Fund and for working people. When everyone received stay-at-home orders in their states due to the pandemic, we had already awarded 91 Summer Fellowships to first and second-year law students.

Thanks to a lot of outreach and creativity from PBF staff and our mentors, we're very happy to report that most of our mentor organizations were able to transition these fellowships to either work from home or another reasonable solution. We were also able to find an alternative mentor for students whose mentors were not able to transition their fellowships. Our thanks go out to all of our mentors and students for their patience during this transition and their willingness to help make this summer a productive and memorable experience for all.

We'll keep you posted on how our fellows fared over the summer on our website at www.peggybrowningfund.org and in our Fall newsletter. You can see all 91 of our Summer Fellows and where they are working at <https://www.peggybrowningfund.org/news/fellows-brochure>.

PBF's annual National Law Students Workers' Rights Conference has been highly successful in developing a greater understanding, passion and commitment to issues facing workers in this changing world. Over 3,000 students have participated since 1999. The pandemic won't stop us. This year we will be switching to an online event.

Our positive reputation has grown our community of participating law schools to 157. Last Fall, we coordinated 16 Regional Workshops at law schools to encourage law students to consider a career in the labor movement. We are proud of the impact our programs have had on the law students we serve and the added value our fellows have brought to the labor movement. This year's Regional Workshops will be held online as well.

However, we know that we have work to do. As the Black Lives Matter protests have grown nationwide and drawn attention to the importance of dismantling systemic racism, we too are looking at ways to help repair the harm done. We condemn the systemic racism perpetrated on people of color by law enforcement throughout the country. These terrible and senseless acts and the history of institutional racism can no longer continue.

We applaud our many fellows and alumni who have protested in the streets. We stand in solidarity with them and with all who fight systemic racism and seek justice for the countless men and women of color who have died at the hands of injustice.

The damage to the lives of working families is monumental, and the relief required to offer hope for the future will require incredible dedication, talent and, yes, lawyers committed to the lives of workers. This year's bright, progressive Peggy Browning Fellows give hope to all of us and will play important roles in the future of justice for all workers.

Thank you for helping us to keep Peggy's dreams and goals alive!

Everyone Benefits from a Gift Anyone Can Make.

2019 Washington, DC Area Summer Fellows at the AFL-CIO for PBF's Awards Reception.

Where there's a will, there's a way.

A gift through your will or trust is a simple way to make a lasting statement about who you are and what you value.

You can do it today—with a Legacy gift through your will to the Peggy Browning Fund.

- ✓ It costs you nothing during your lifetime and will not reduce your savings or your cash flow.
- ✓ It's flexible so you can make changes down the road.
- ✓ It's much easier than most people realize. A simple paragraph added to your will is all it takes.
- ✓ Allows you to be far more generous than you ever thought possible.

Leave your mark on the future of the Peggy Browning Fund's Fellowship Program with a gift through your will or trust.

Feedback from Peggy Browning Fellows

Lawyers can spend their whole careers and never even see the Supreme Court; I had the tremendous opportunity to work on a Supreme Court issue as a summer fellow. Additionally, I was not pigeonholed ... I worked on issues touching on contracts, bankruptcy, immigration, torts, employment and labor, negotiations, arbitration, criminal, and administrative law. Unlike other summer associates at corporate firms, I had a hands-on experience dealing with substantive issues ... (This was) a once in a lifetime opportunity; you get exposed to a first rate network of alumni and allies, and often the fellowship is a prerequisite for a job. The fellowship ... strengthened my desire to practice labor law. It opened my eyes to the exciting opportunities out there

- *Matthew McDonough, CUNY School of Law
PBF'18, International Brotherhood of Teamsters*

Some things Fellows like most about their fellowship experience:

- It broadened my horizons.
- The welcoming nature of my supervising attorneys.
- The wide range of assignments.
- The level of independence I had.
- Working with like-minded attorneys invested in social justice.

Peggy Browning Fund

Feedback from Peggy Browning Fellows

More examples of what Fellows typically like most about their fellowship experience each year:

- The perfect mix of work, training, and observation.
- Making a difference and being supported by people with similar goals as mine.
- I loved the union and the people working around me; I loved the work, and that I was trusted with serious projects, where my legal analysis and ideas were valued and given space.
- Exploring many practice areas and doing real, meaningful work for our union and workers' compensation clients.
- Providing direct legal representation to clients, conducting legal research on complex issues, and participating in actions and meetings with administrative agencies.
- The ability to be involved in all steps of the litigation process, from client meetings to mediations to phone calls with opposing counsels. I feel like I really got a valuable insight into the life of a practicing employment law attorney.

Alumni

We educate law students about the rights and needs of workers. We aim to develop thoughtful and passionate labor advocates. Since 1997, we have placed law students in over 1,045 Peggy Browning Fellowships, plus 91 new Fellows in 2020.

We're proud to say that, not counting students still in law school, nearly 42% of our alumni are working in the labor movement and another 28% support social justice in various public interest jobs. We've lost track of many others but are always looking for them. We can't list them all, but here are a few examples.

Many work for unions, including these in the Washington, DC area:

Michael Artz – Associate General Counsel, AFSCME; member, PBF's Board of Directors;

Wala Blegay – Staff Attorney, DC Nurses Association;

John D'Elia – Assistant General Counsel, Andrew Hamilton, Research Coordinator, SEIU;

Samantha Duncan – Staff Counsel, and Keisha Williams, Legal Rights Attorney, AFGE;

George Faraday – Counsel and Policy Analyst, Change to Win;

Leah Ford – Executive Assistant to the General Secretary-Treasurer, International Brotherhood of Teamsters;

Laura Karr – Staff Attorney, United Mine Workers of America;

Danielle LeClair – Assistant Director of the Legislative and Political Department, LIUNA;

Peggy Browning Fund

Alumni

Robyn Mabry, Assistant Counsel, and Frank Barczykowski, Deputy Director of Negotiations, National Treasury Employees Union;

Breana Malloy – International Representative, IBEW;

Emily Pantoj – Assistant Director of Industrial Relations, Transportation Communications Union/IAM;

Maria Roeper – Director of Human Resources, International Association of Machinists;

Jessica Rutter – Assistant Director, Legal Department, American Federation of Teachers;

Daniel Smith – Assistant General Counsel, Amalgamated Transit Union;

Suzanne Summerlin – Attorney, National Federation of Federal Employees;

Gabriele Ulbig – Associate Counsel, LIUNA Mid-Atlantic Regional Organizing Coalition.

Many others practice law at worker centers, community legal service agencies, immigrant rights organizations, and other public interest organizations throughout the US, including these in Washington, DC:

Sarah David-Heydemann – Senior Counsel for Workplace Justice, National Women’s Law Center;

Jessica Hahn – National Immigration Law Center;

Charlotte Noss – Worker Center Program Director, National Employment Law Project.

Peggy Browning Fund Alumni

Many Alumni are working at union-side labor law firms, labor and employment law firms, and employee benefit law firms, including the following in the Washington, DC area:

Lucas Aubrey – Sherman Dunn, P.C.;

Kathleen Bichner, Rebecca Daily, Andrew Kelser, and Joshua Lowery – O’Donoghue & O’Donoghue;

Nicole Faut and Hillary LeBeau – McGillivray Steele Elkin LLP;

Michael Melick – Barr & Camens;

Kristina Salamoun and Hillary Webb – Slevin & Hart, P.C.;

Aniko Schwarz – Cohen, Milstein Sellers & Toll PLLC.

Approximately 115 other Alumni are currently pursuing careers in various federal, state, and local government departments in positions related to labor law.

This is just a small sample of the numerous talented PBF alumni who have devoted their careers to advocating for workers’ rights.
